Trenton, N.J. — Mayor Eric Jackson will report to the people of Trenton on the State of the City this Thursday, October 22 in the Council Chambers at City Hall, city spokesman Michael Walker announced today.

"When Mayor Jackson took office on July 1, 2014, he had a bold agenda—to restore municipal government, build collaborative relationships, strengthen public safety, activate economic development and improve public works and infrastructure. He and his cabinet of top professionals have been working tirelessly to make progress in all these areas," said Walker.

Mayor Jackson's State of the City address is open to the general public. Doors open at 5 p.m. In addition to the Mayor's address, Rev. John Taylor of Friendship Baptist Church and Rev. Barry Vazquez of Living by Grace Fellowship will offer the invocation and benediction. More than 200 people are expected to attend the Mayor's State of the City address.
